Letters To The Editor

Sir,

I feel I must write and say thanks for the Ohio University Alumnus magazine, and the new policy of making it available for all Ohio grads free. This is a real step in the right direction on the part of the University and I for one appreciate it very much. I have desired to have a subscription for many years but for one reason or another I just never felt I could subscribe to it when the time came to write the check.

Anyhow, now we all have it and it's great!

Rev. Frank P. Ellis
Green Camp, Ohio

Sir,

I just wanted to tell you how delighted I am that I will be receiving The Ohio Alumnus for life. I feel as if I am receiving a personal letter each month from a place which left me with fond memories.

Julius Rosen, '56

Brooklyn 10, New York

Sir,

This is just a quick note to inform you that I will be getting out of the U. S. Navy in March, 1964, and will be changing my address at that time.

I thank you for the outstanding publication that you put out so consistently and am looking forward to the next issue. I was particularly interested in the article on the expansion of the University in the October issue. It makes me proud to be an Alumnus. I hope when I get settled down in civilian life that I can afford to show my appreciation in a more substantial manner.

Sir,

It is a joy to sit down for a few relaxing minutes with coffee and the Ohio Alumnus.

Mrs. Virginia Petznick Pendell, '58

Horseheads, New York

Sir,

I am very pleased to be receiving the Ohio Alumnus now. I didn't realize how much news concerning the school that I had been missing during the past few years.

Thank you again for the Alumnus.

Dick Keyse, '53

Sir,

It is indeed a pleasure to be able to write this letter expressing my thanks for a truly informative and inspiring magazine, the Ohio Alumnus. I have had an opportunity to compare it with other alumni magazines and I am proud to say Ohio's publications far excels the others.

Again, my thanks for a fine publication and for helping me relive some of my fondest memories of Ohio University.

Editorially Speaking...

1804 to 1964 is 160 years. In February, Ohio University will be celebrating the 160th anniversary of its founding. The week of February 16 to 22 has been designated as "Founders' Week". There will be special anniversary activities for each day during that week. These will include special religious services, lectures by prominent personalities, convocations, international day, patriots' day and special frontier dances and social activities.

Let us look back to the early 1780's when a small group of men gathered in an inn in Boston. They had a vision. They dreamed of settling in a corner of a great land area then known as the Northwest Territory. Their vision included the establishment of a college for the education of their sons and daughters. One of their number, General Rufus Putnam, sent a special petition to his friend George Washington, asking for land warrants for Revolutionary War veterans who wished to settle in the Ohio Country. A second man, Reverend Manasseh Cutler, assisted Thomas Jefferson in the drafting of the Ordinance of 1787; this ordinance provided that "schools, and the means of education shall forever be encouraged" in the West. We now know well the story of the difficulties encountered by Putnam and Cutler as their party of men moved down the Ohio River in the 1790's.

At last—in 1804—Rufus Putnam and Manasseh Cutler founded this university, the first institution of higher learning in the Northwest Territory and the sixteenth oldest university in America. Five years later, Ohio University, a tiny flame of learning in the vast wilderness of the West, installed its first president, Jacob Lindley. That year, 1809, is noteworthy for other reasons too. Abraham Lincoln was born in 1809, as were Oliver Wendell Holmes, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Edgar Allan Poe, and Alfred Lord Tennyson. The world of music was enriched by the birth of Felix Mendelssohn. Other men who made major contributions to mankind were born that same year—Charles Darwin, Louis Braille, William Gladstone and Cyrus McCormick.

The Value of Visiting Committees

VISITING COMMITTEES at Ohio University — who are they? What are they doing at the university? What has been the campus experience this year with the new Visiting Committees?

Visiting Committees are composed of men and women who have achieved outstanding success in the various professions. For example, presidents and vice presidents of some of our country's most successful business concerns serve on the Business Administration Visiting Committee. Noted actresses, musicians and painters serve on the Fine Arts Visiting Committee.

Richard L. Shetler, '43, Engineering and Technology.

"The spontaneity, the enthusiasm, and the lively dedication shown by both the Fine Arts faculty and the committee members is something I shall not soon forget."

*John W. Galbreath, '20
Chairman, Fine Arts Committee*

The basic responsibility of the Visiting Committee is to narrow the gap between the university and the experienced professional world—the world that will receive our students.

The Visiting Committee acts as a bridge between the college classroom and the world of practical performance. Members of the committee tell the faculty and students about the realities that must be faced when students begin their careers. They offer suggestions as to the current trends and special needs of the various professions. They talk to the faculty about curriculum changes which would help the student to adjust to our changing competitive society.

Ohio has three Visiting Committees who visit the campus regularly. These committees are affiliated with The College of Engineering and Technology, The College of Business Administration, and The College of Fine Arts. Just this month, the College of Education has announced the names of a distinguished list of educators who have consented to serve on the new Education Visiting Committee.

According to John Galbreath, Trustee and Chairman of the Fine Arts Visiting Committee, "My session with the new committee was one of the most rewarding and enlightening experiences that I have had at Ohio. The spontaneity, the enthusiasm, and the lively dedication shown by both the Fine Arts faculty and the committee members is something I shall not soon forget. More people should be exposed to this type of experience—it would refresh and renew anyone. After participating in a Fine Arts Visiting Committee meeting, even the most rigid cynic would respond."

Earl C. Seigfred, Dean of the College of Fine Arts, had this to say about his Visiting Committee: "It was very good for us to have these distinguished personalities from the outside point to the things that we are doing that are worthwhile. It gave us a great lift to hear these people reaffirm our methods and our ideas. We were also glad to have the visitors draw attention to courses and techniques that might be improved. The Committee left the campus tremendously enthused, and in return they gave us a strong sense of worth and purpose. The effect upon the faculty was very rewarding; they seemed to me renewed, encouraged and refreshed."

E. J. Taylor, Jr., Dean of the College of Engineering and Technology has the oldest Visiting Committee on campus. And he has this to say about his experience: "I consider our Board of Visitors an invaluable addition to the life of our College. Let me give you a specific example of the kind of assistance which they provide: Originally, we had planned to build our new Engineering building on the West Green area. The Visiting Committee looked at these plans, and after considerable discussion, decided that if we built on the West Green we would limit seriously any plans we might have for future expansion of the College. They felt that as the years went by, we would most certainly want to add to our facilities and equipment. If we accepted the West Green site, we would be boxed in and confined to a limited area. Often, it takes someone from the outside to see these things. Our Visitors triggered the idea that we should build a combination Engineering and Science Research Center further out on the old State Hospital grounds. It will not be too long now before this excellent suggestion becomes a reality."

Dean Taylor goes on to say, "You know these people are free from the usual internal pressures and politics. They are able to see more clearly the big over-all picture. And they do not hesitate to tell you about it."

Talking about his Board of Visitors, Paul L. Noble,

Dean of the College of Business Administration says, "From time to time the Visiting Committee comes up with a really first-rate idea that has proven to be of great value to us. A year ago last October, our visitors told us that many of our scientists in business, research institutes and government agencies were experiencing difficulty in managing the large number of research programs which they had taken on. They told us that many of the scientists were having problems with their budgets, overhead expenses and personnel assignments. The Committee said that the College of Business Administration could help with this current problem. So, in October 1963 in cooperation with Battelle Memorial Institute, we conducted a two-week Seminar in Research Management which was attended by 59 scientists and engineers from all over the country."

"Another fringe benefit which we receive from the visitors is that occasionally I really need advice or answers to a sticky problem. Because of my previous contacts with the various business houses and industries, I can pick up the phone and talk personally with perhaps the Secretary of the Continental Can Company or the Vice President of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio. The value of these outside contacts is immeasurable and self-explanatory."

Network Names Alumnus TV News Director

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO a well-known magazine devoted its feature section to the so-called television news war between the National Broadcasting Company (NBC) and the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS). No mention was made of the third major network, American Broadcasting Company (ABC).

Then, midway through November, ABC apparently tired of its low news ratings and named Jesse A. Zousmer, '36, director of television news. Zousmer, a newsman since his graduation, had been with CBS for 19 years prior to leaving that network three years ago.

"We don't intend to jump into their so-called feud," the Ohio graduate said, "but we are certainly going to compete with them."

No stranger to the news reporting field, Zousmer worked five years for the Columbus, O., Citizen before departing in 1941 for greener pastures with CBS in New York. For the next six years he was a staff writer, weekend editor, regular editor, and an associate on special projects with such well-known commentators as John Daly and Robert Trout.

In 1947, the new ABC-TV news director began a 14 year association with Edward R. Murrow, returning from Europe where he covered the war. He returned to the radio airways with Zousmer his news editor. Basically, Zousmer wrote the first half of each night's show—the "hard news" portion.

Zousmer entered the television field in a big way. He, Murrow, and John Aaron, now producer of "Alumni Fun," developed the popular "Person to Person" show. The program was carried each Friday night on 83 CBS stations, and consisted of interviews with prominent persons in their homes.

"I'm slowly getting adjusted to my new position," Zousmer said from his office in New York City. "You know, this is nothing like the old Person to Person show. This is strictly a news job." He works 12 hours a day.

The New York Herald Tribune, in commenting on Zousmer's appointment, said, "Both the Zousmer and Quinn (an ABC newsman) moves were seen in the trade as steps in a major ABC effort to get into all-out television news competition with front-running NBC and CBS before the presidential primaries."

Zousmer feels as if ABC can compete. "We have some pretty good men in Ron Cochran, Edward P. Morgan, Howard K. Smith and Bill Lawrence."

Also holder of a Master's degree from Ohio, Zousmer is a hard-working alumnus. Recipient of the Certificate of Merit in 1955 for radio and television writing, he is a member of the Alumni Association's Board of Directors and a former officer of the New York Alumni Club.

A resident of Sands Point, Long Island, N. Y., he is married to the former Ruth Taylor and the father of a son, Steven.

Lt. Jerry D. Jones, '60, and a few of his many trophies. (From the Olmsted, Pa., Orbiter)

A Feet Tiring Feat

LATE IN SEPTEMBER Jerry D. Jones, '60, accomplished an athletic feat that few people could ever hope to match. Jones, a first lieutenant in the United States Air Force ran 50 miles in the unheard time of seven hours and one minute.

A distance runner for Coach Stan Huntsman while a student at Ohio, Jones performed his historic run while stationed at Olmstead AFB, Pa. The 25-year-old aviation weather forecaster is now on assignment in Vietnam.

Earlier in the year a Polish refugee, John Macy, completed the grueling 50 miles on a flat Texas course. The terrain that Jones chose, however was the hills of Central Pennsylvania.

Up at the crack of dawn Sunday morning, September 22, Jones ate a hearty breakfast and slipped into his running togs. At 8:50 he was standing in front of the stone monument at the MAAMA Headquarters building reading a dedication to Lt. Robert Sanford Olmstead—to whom he dedicated the athletic feat. On that date, forty years before, Lt. Olmsted and co-pilot Lt. John Shoptaw were readying themselves for their fateful balloon flight in Holland.

At 9 a.m. Jones, clocked by three members of the local high school track team, was off and running. Mid-morning church goers saw Jones heading east toward Elizabethtown.

As the sun rose toward the warmest part of the day, the athlete moved from the Lancaster County line north toward the community of Mannheim and Lebanon County. At 2:30 he reached Mannheim.

Every ten miles, one of the trio that accompanied Jones on his run got out of the pace car and ran alongside Jones with cups of ice tea, orange juice and water. In all, the trio gave the Ohio graduate thirteen assists of refreshment.

Jones reached the forty mile mark in perfect stride. Although he contemplated calling off the jaunt at this point, he shouted, "let's give it another five mile go." Five miles later and still going strong, he trotted toward the center of Lebanon.

"Where's our fifty mile mark," he asked his timers.

"Just west of Cleona," they replied.

"Let's make it," Jones offered.

With an unheralded ending Jones crossed the finish line in same form he showed seven hours and one minute before. On hand to witness the moment were two men in separate cars who had followed the runner for eleven miles, three bystanders, and the trio from the track team that followed all the way.

As they checked Jones for pulse and signs of good health, he commented, "thanks fellows, I couldn't have done it without you."

Football Was Different in '97

By Ron McMillen

THE 1963 MAC championship victory for the Bobcats brings back many memories for three Athens gentlemen who played football at Ohio University in 1897 and '98.

Few of us can remember football without the forward pass or the intricate pass patterns of today's game. James "Pete" McLaren, J. Clyde Edmundson, and Ralph "Teetle" Dalton, however, played the game when brute force and agile foot manipulation of the ball were the key factors of the game.

"Pete" McLaren, just turned 86, was a player in 1897 and was head coach of the Ohio team in 1898. He recalls, "It was really football in those days. If we weren't using our feet to move the ball, we were using them to get another player out of the road."

The game was so rough at this time in its early history that there were national movements to outlaw the game. Head Coach McLaren remembers with sorrow the death of a team mate on the '98 team.

McLaren also played ball for Ohio State in 1899. While playing at OSU he again experienced the death of a fellow player. "There were a lot of serious accidents," he said, "we just had to take it as part of the game."

Clyde Edmundson, 85, remembers playing against most of the colleges in the immediate area except Ohio State. According to him, it was the general consensus at the time that OSU was "afraid" to play the Athens team.

Marietta Academy was the rival team in those days, and it was at Marietta that Coach McLaren got his early experience. Scouting and recruitment were apparent even then. In 1897 Ohio shut out Marietta Academy as a result of what the newspapers called, "McLaren's fine playing."

McLaren had transferred from Marietta that year because of the encouragement of Fred Bush, publisher of the Athens Messenger. Bush and other Athenians followed the early team with interest.

The three early players follow the Bobcats with interest and marvel at the changes in the game. When they played football many of the characteristics of Rugby, football's parent game, were still apparent. They agreed that even though passes were limited to the backfield and long runs were few in those days, the excitement ran just as high.

Today, Coach McLaren lives at the Hillcrest Nursing Home in Athens. He spent his life working in Athens and Washington counties.

Edmundson and his wife live at 192 E. State. He was county auditor for eight years and was a former University employee.

Dalton, who was born and raised in Athens, lives at 38 Franklin. His nickname "Teetle" came about in a game in 1898, and he has been known by that name in Athens ever since.

Bobcat Lair

By Frank D. Morgan

AFTER SEVEN BASKETBALL games, Ohio University's Bobcats rest atop the Mid-American Conference standings, tied with Miami at 1-0.

Ohio owes this to a 85-69 road victory over Marshall and Miami's win was at home against Bowling Green. Conference schedule action gets heavy in January.

Pre-season dopesters put the favorite tag on Toledo and the Rockets have looked like it since the season started. They whizzed through their first six games victoriously, including the dumping of highly-regarded New York University in Madison Square Garden by 13 points.

Ohio also ran through its first six games without a defeat, whipping Denison 73-39 in the home opener, Morehead 105-84 at Athens, Wisconsin, 77-76, at Madison, Southern Illinois 79-69 at home, Marshall, St. John's of New York 58-54 at St. John's and losing to Army 58-45 at West Point.

Western Michigan and Miami were tabbed as next in line to give Toledo a run for the conference crown, with Coach Jim Snyder's Ohio charges rated fourth. At this writing, the Broncos are 2-3 against some of the top teams in the country, losing to Michigan State by a point and Loyola of Chicago by three and Miami is 4-2 with an impressive four point loss to high-ranked Cincinnati at home.

So, although Ohio's Bobcats have zoomed off to a great start, there's a long, hard road ahead. After seven games, Jerry Jackson, the team's most valuable player of last season and leading scorer, is atop the pile again with a 16.7 average. He's followed by Don Hilt, the rangy, strong forward who is pumping them in at the rate of 15.1. Hilt leads the ballclub in rebounds with an average of 11.0 per game. Mike Haley is third high with an 11.9 average and Captain Paul Storey is the Bobcats' fourth man in double figures, 10.7.

This well-balanced scoring attack has pleased Coach Snyder who has molded another respectable Ohio University basketball squad out of four former forwards. Snyder, incidentally, is now the dean of the Mid-American coaches, an honor he came by with the retirement from basketball of Bowling Green's Harold Anderson, who has stepped up to the Athletic Director's job.

One of the brightest aspects of Ohio's basketball picture is the progress of its undefeated freshman squad, one of the finest ever to represent Ohio University. Snyder was able to collar 6-9 John Schroeder from Norwalk, O., a boy who averaged well over 20 ppg in high school, and two boys from last year's Ohio High School championship Columbus East team, 6-4 Ken Fowlkes and 5-10, sparkplug guard Mike Hammond. In the frosh's four games to date, they have blitzed Denison's jayvees 111-43, West Virginia 105-60, Morris Harvey 102-93 and Marshall 109-88. Schroeder is leading the Bobkittens with a 20.0 average, Fowlkes is 18.3 and Hammond, 15.5. Another lad, Russ Hamilton, of Marion, O., is also in double figures with a 13.0 average. Schroeder is leading the team in rebounds with 80, with Fowlkes second with 40 and Dave Brown, of Steubenville, with 32.

Getting back to the varsity, the center position still holds the key to Ohio's fate this year in the Mid-American. One man with fair experience, Lloyd Buck, 6-7, Xenia (Woodrow Wilson) has been the foremost starter, but he is being pushed by an up and coming sophomore, Ken Brown of Gratiot. If the two can develop into top centers quickly, Ohio could be in the title picture. Seniors Paul Storey and Jerry Jackson have the starting backcourt jobs sewed up and Don Hilt and Mike Haley have been working effectively at the forwards.

Toledo and Miami have all their depth returning, and Western Michigan lost only one as did Ohio. This, coupled with the fact that the lower teams on the totem pole last year are stronger this season, means a real dogfight for conference honors.

COACH FRED SCHLEICHER'S wrestling squad is off to another fine start. They have won the Hiram Invitational tournament and the Ohio Quadrangular in their only two starts at this writing. Fred has eight lettermen back, including three Mid-American champions, but the depth is all in the heavier divisions. The Bobcats lack strength in the lower weight classes. Ohio's mat chances suffered a severe setback when Norm Rivers, last year's MAC champion at 157 lbs. suffered a separated shoulder in the Hiram opener. Dick Vlasak has been moved up to try to fill the void. Chuck Ronyetz, MAC champ last year at 167 is back along with Ohio's two-time MAC champion Harry Houska. Here's a lad, from Parma, O., who has a chance of being one of the all-time Ohio greats in the sport. His record going into his senior year was 46-3 and he's breezed through each opponent he's met this year with pins. Houska went to the NCAA finals last year only to lose in the final match.

COACH FLETCHER GILDER'S Ohio swim squad opened the season with a strong second in the Mid-American Conference relays at Bowling Green. Seven lettermen return, headed by diver Jim Patterson and butterfly ace Alex Moshos. Patterson is the defending MAC champ on the low board and was third in last year's high board competition. Moshos holds the conference 200-yard butterfly title. In addition, Dave Parker, who tied for first in the MAC 100-yard freestyle last year, will be eligible for competition second semester. Also returning after a year's absence from school is Ed Cooper, who holds Ohio records in the 100 and 200 yard backstroke.

OHIO'S "CLUB" HOCKEY TEAM is moving into some stiff competition this year. Coach John McComb's men won two early exhibition matches and then whopped Ohio State 16-1 and Western Michigan 10-4. Moving into tough Michigan State, the Ohio icers found the going a little tougher and dropped a weekend pair to the Spartans, 6-4 and 7-1. Ohio is strong at goal and the forwards, but somewhat weak on defense. Four of the top five scorers from last year returned with Russ Counter, Ted Martin, Ken Arvidson and Tom Gosiorowski leading the way. Mike L. Heureux, a junior college transfer from Port Huron, has been a delightful surprise and has cracked the starting line. The top returnee on defense, John Gardner, needs some help and McComb must come up with it from a group including Dennis Corbett, Doug Write, Harry Williams, Steve Petro or Ernie LeRoy.

With Colorado College, Michigan State at home, Ohio State, Army, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Port Huron, Illinois, and University of Windsor ahead of them, McComb's charges have their work cut out.

Ohio University in the News

A capsuled account of University activity as reported by the American Press

PREPARED BY THE OFFICE OF INFORMATION

Symposium on Learning

BY THE END of the century university students will be spending summers on the moon and learning languages while they sleep, according to Ohio President Vernon R. Alden.

Not only that, they may be sleeping under water, President Alden told a group of 125 National Merit Scholarship semi-finalists who were guests of the University for a special "Symposium on Learning" Nov. 23.

The day-long symposium, sponsored jointly by University students and the student personnel staff, was attended by the selected group of top high school students who met with faculty and heard discussions on various academic programs.

In covering the symposium, the Associated Press quoted President Alden:

"Summer research projects for U. S. students will be carried out on the moon, just as they are now being conducted in Europe . . . Language lessons will be beamed from tape recorders into the subconscious minds of students while they sleep . . . Even then, students may need only half as much sleep as they now require, because they will be under water . . . Science already is discovering that oxygen can be extracted from the water for direct human use and that persons require only half their normal amount of sleep when immersed in water."

PRESIDENT ALDEN

First Family of the NAIA

THE LIFE OF OHIO University Trustee Fred H. Johnson was traced in an article, "The NAIA's New First Family," which appeared in the November issue of The American Agency Bulletin.

The article resulted from Trustee Johnson's recent election as president of the National Association of Insurance Agents. It stated:

"The National Association's new president, Fred H. Johnson of Columbus, Ohio, began another chapter of a highly successful business career, which has been accompanied by devotion to family and service to higher education, church, government, and civic organizations, when he was elected to the presidency last month in Chicago."

Nobel Prize Winner Speaks

SCIENCE AND HUMAN aspirations were discussed by Dr. Isidor I. Rabi, Nobel Prize winner, who appeared as a Edwin and Ruth Kennedy Lecturer at Ohio University Nov. 21. Dr. Rabi holds the Higgins chair in physics at Columbia University where he has taught since 1929.

A consultant at Los Alamos during World War II, he has spent much of the past 18 years as an advisor to the Atomic Energy Commission, the State Department, the Department of Defense, and the White House.

Grant for Computer

OHIO UNIVERSITY has received $25,000 from the National Science Foundation to finance use of a 1620 IBM computer, now installed in the computer laboratory in Super Hall.

The Athens Messenger (Nov. 20) reported that "the card computer, judged ten times faster and more versatile than present equipment at the University, can add or subtract ten digit numbers in one thousandth of a second, multiply or divide such numbers in one hundredth of a second.

The computer has been installed under the direction of Dr. Wendell V. Brooks, associate professor of chemistry, and is available to faculty and students for teaching and research problems. Courses in programming computers are available at Ohio in the Departments of Mathematics and Electrical Engineering.

DR. WENDELL V. BROOKS

Enthusiasm in the Branches

MARTINS FERRY OFFICIALS have launched an intense effort to obtain a college campus for the Ohio University branch there, according to the Martins Ferry Times Leader (Nov. 9).

Belmont County Commissioners have offered Ohio 125 acres of land, formerly the Experimental Farm, as site for the campus, the newspaper stated. At the same time, the article reported, "a delegation of city, civic and service club officials are discussing prospects of establishing a community-type college with a campus in the city." The city group has met with Ohio President Vernon R. Alden and Dean of Branches Albert C. Gubitz to present its plan.

Mayor John Laslo of Martins Ferry stated that the city will offer the University a tract of land for the college and will provide water, sewer and electrical services.

The commissioners' offer is in the form of a resolution stating that "the tract offers land of suitable contour and the location is desirable." It would be "turned over to Ohio University without charge."

Begin Management Seminars

A SERIES OF MANAGEMENT practices seminars sponsored by the College of Business Administration began Nov. 22 for management personnel from Ohio River Valley industries and businesses. The Marietta Times (Nov. 23) stated that 18 plants in Southeastern Ohio and West Virginia have enrolled participants in the executive development programs. Enrollees attend eight seminar sessions at three week intervals through April 24 at Parkersburg, W. Va.

DR. EVARTS

From Mystery to Necessity

DATA PROCESSING has become synonymous with information handling, wrote Dr. Harry F. Evarts, assistant dean of the College of Business Administration, in an article published last month by Foundry magazine.

"Data processing is neither new nor mysterious," he said, "but the advent of the computer has caused more change than all other developments that preceded it."

"This is a beginning, but only a beginning," Dr. Evarts concluded. "Constant refinements in the computer and in programming make data processing easier each year. What was formerly mysterious is now a necessity to thousands of American businessmen."

History Contest Winners

A MARIETTA HIGH SCHOOL junior from Lowell, Ohio, won top honors in the 17th annual Ohio History, Government and Citizenship Contest sponsored last month by Ohio University.

Stacy Evans was declared winner over 103 top-ranking students who took the final contest examination on campus. Other winners, announced via Associated Press (Nov. 3), were Paul Steffanni of Bettsville, second, and Judith Morgan of Wilmington, third. Reported AP:

"Ohio University sponsored the contest to encourage research at the high school level and promote interest in the state's history. The finalists were required to answer three essay questions submitted by Gov. James A. Rhodes, Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., of Akron, and Thomas Vail, publisher and editor of The Cleveland Plain Dealer."

GOVERNOR RHODES

Nuclear Laboratory Equipment

OHIO UNIVERSITY is receiving a grant of $11,900 from the Atomic Energy Commission to purchase nuclear technology laboratory equipment for a course in radiation physiology. The United Press International (Nov. 22) reported that the new advanced course, under the direction of Dr. Henri C. Seibert and Dr. Jack E. Harclerode, brings to six the number of courses offered in Ohio's nuclear education program in the life sciences.

The daughter of a Washington writer, Clyde W. LaMotte, Lalinda got the idea of reporting campus trends in fashions, classroom presentation, admission requirements, scholarship opportunities, and other items of interest to prospective college students. She wrote to several newspapers, and the three accepted her as a columnist. Most of her spare time is spent in talking with students at Ohio and corresponding with several from other campuses across the nation to get material for her column.

Birthday

Bobcat

Men of Lincoln Hall dormitory celebrate third birthday of now famous "Mr. Bobcat."

HOMECOMING 1963 was not only the scene of a brisk scrimmage with Delaware and the stage for lavish floats and beautiful queens, but also commemorated the third birthday of the Ohio University Bobcat suit.

Mr. Bobcat was born out of an idea from the men of Lincoln Hall. The boys discussed whether or not to enter Homecoming and float competition because, as secretary Tom Schantz explains, "We just didn't have the time or know-how. Yet we wanted to donate something permanent to the university—something that would last."

After much deliberation, Lincoln Hall decided to create the character that is symbolic of the Ohio University Bobcats. Mr. Bobcat was to have life at last.

But before he could become living reality, there was much to be done. A committee of the officers was formed, which included Tom Atkins, president; Jed Frost, vice-president; and Tom Schantz, secretary-treasurer.

Preliminary sketches had to be made for his costume. Schantz, a Fine Arts major and experienced costume assistant, created patterns, altered patterns and discarded patterns before deciding on the final one.

The next task was to make the paper patterns into a real suit. The head, being the most intricate part of the costume, was sent to France for construction because the workmanship is less expensive. After trying costume shops in New York, San Francisco and Philadelphia, the committee realized that the art of papier-mâchéing was uncommon in the United States.

Patterns for the pants and gloves were sent to Van Horn and Sons in Philadelphia, Pa. Puritan Knits, also in Philadelphia, received the pattern for a hand-knit sweater, which was to be 62 inches long and 42 inches wide.

Total cost for the Bobcat suit was $250, including long distance telephone calls. The money, which was taken from the Social Fund of Lincoln Hall, was broken down: head, $100; sweater, $60; pants, $28; padding for stomach and rear, $35; and gloves $6.

One final task confronted the committee: who was going to make this mascot live?

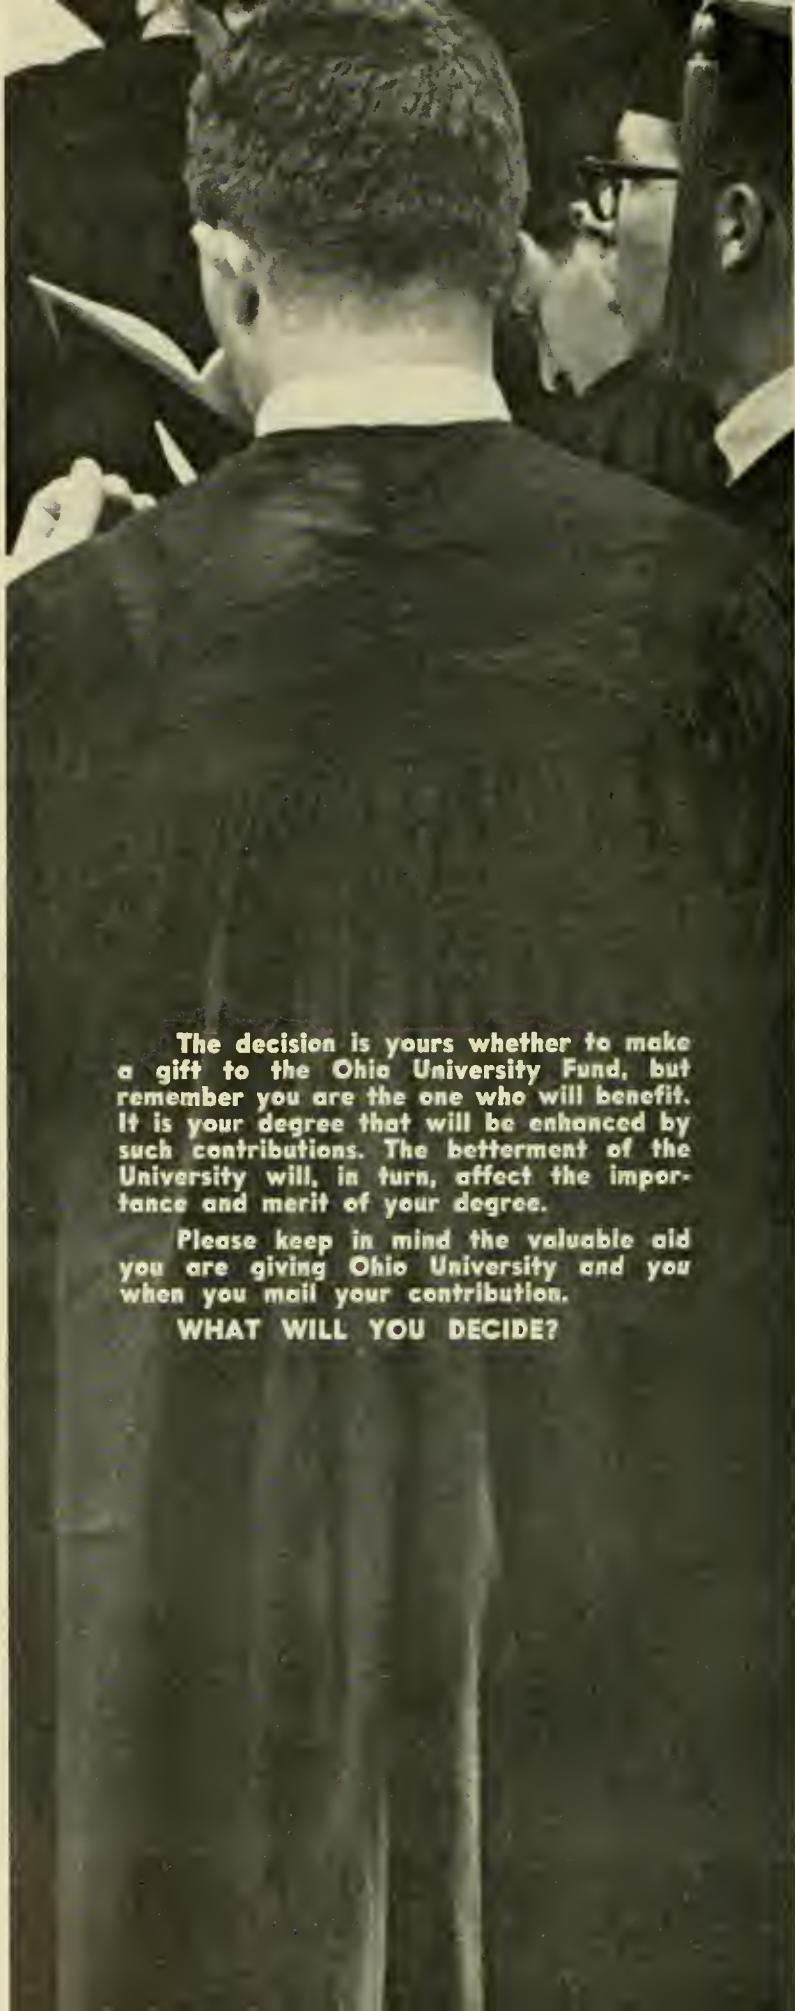

Because of the suit's size, the person wearing it could not exceed 5' 11" in height. The suit itself was hot and confining because the only possible ventilation was through the eyes and nose. Dan Nichols, class of '63, was the first Mr. Bobcat. He set the precedent that all Mr. Bobcats must live in Lincoln Hall.

Campus Affairs Committee decided that Mr. Bobcat would be a permanent member of the cheerleading squad and would cheer at all football and basketball games.

Thus on Homecoming 1960, Mr. Bobcat emerged in a suit of glorious green and white to become Ohio University's first living mascot.

This year at Homecoming Mr. Bobcat, now Allen Weinberg, senior accounting major from Highland Park, N.J., was wished a happy third birthday. Lincoln Hall and Tom Schantz were given recognition for making it possible.

Certainly the men of Lincoln Hall achieved their purpose: they gave "something permanent to the university—something that would last."

The decision is yours whether to make a gift to the Ohio University Fund, but remember you are the one who will benefit. It is your degree that will be enhanced by such contributions. The betterment of the University will, in turn, affect the importance and merit of your degree.

Please keep in mind the valuable aid you are giving Ohio University and you when you mail your contribution.

Toney Chambers, '53

Reprinted from the Lockbourne AFB Powder Press

LYNDALE CHAMBERS, '53, more affectionately known to Lockbourne AFB as "Toney", is a marvelously talented personality, and the capable wife of Lockbourne's Presbyterian Chaplain, Captain Floyd Chambers.

Toney and Floyd met while they were working in Chicago during a summer vacation from college. He was then a ministerial student attending McCormick Seminary, and she was a music major at Ohio. She has maintained her deep interest in music and is presently the organist at the base chapel. Their courtship was a relatively short one and they married six months later.

Prior to entering the service, Toney and Floyd lived in the mountains of eastern Kentucky. They were serving under National Missions, working with an entire area rather than a single church. As one can guess, the area assigned them was a coal mining district, where they served three churches and four Sunday schools.

After residing in Kentucky for three years, they entered the service. Their first assignment was at Chanute AFB in Illinois. It proved to be a two year tour and Tony kept active being a mother and meeting the demands of a Chaplain's wife.

From Illinois, they traveled to Tachikawa AFB in Japan. Toney plunged into many activities while living in the Far East. She became interested in Toastmistress Club and served as its president for a term. She also took part in floral arranging classes, doll making classes and studied art. On top of all these interests, she joined the Aero Club. She had done some flying when she was a teenager and decided at Tachikawa to get her pilot's license. She succeeded in doing so and flew two and three times a week.

While aboard, the youngest of the four Chambers Children, Sheryl, now 2½, was born, joining Mark, Debra and Kent. Toney says she accomplished the three things one does when assigned to Japan; "You climb Mt. Fuji, (she reached the bottom), buy your china and have a baby."

Toney and Floyd and family returned to the states and came to Lockbourne two years ago. Although she hasn't found time to do any flying here, she is active in many organizations. She also puts in many long hours working with the Protestant Women of the Chapel Guild. She still maintains her thirst for knowledge by "devouring books by the dozens." Toney favors no particular subject, but takes books home from the library "five and ten" at a time.

Despite all these diversified activities, Toney manages a smooth and efficient home, with a hint here and there of the Oriental. Her keen mind and zest for life clearly reflect her charming personality.

Mildred Barber

University Employee Retires After Forty Years of Service

ONE OF THE MOST telling indications of an institution's growth is found on its accounts payable ledgers. Enliven this fiscal statement with personal reminiscence and the factual account becomes very human history.

Such a recounting of the past forty years at Ohio University is an engrossing tale when told by Miss Mildred Barber, retiring November 15 after four decades in the University treasurer's office. As supervisor of the accounts payable department, Miss Barber has seen the business office expand from a staff of five to a staff of 27, with five in her section alone. From two rooms on the first floor of Ellis, the treasurer's office has now spread throughout that building's basement.

Miss Barber began her career at Ohio under President Elmer Bryan. Since his retirement she has seen three more presidents, Dr. Herman James, Dr. Walter Gannertsfelder, and John C. Baker lead the University before the present president, Dr. Vernon R. Alden took office.

A survey of the ledgers handled by Miss Barber over the years shows closed accounts for such once familiar agencies as WPA, ASTP and NYA. Works Program Administration funds were used to build such campus landmarks as the wings on Lindley and Howard. World War II saw many costs charged against the Arms Special Training Program and Miss Barber has paid out many checks from National Youth Administration monies to students working their way through college.

In noting other changes that have occurred during her tenure with Ohio, Mildred Barber thinks back longingly to the days when parking at the University was not a problem. "For so many years we had plenty of parking space just around the edges of campus," she recalls.

From the campus she first knew with only 14 buildings she has seen another 50 buildings added at the University, with more underway. Most of the purchasing accounts for this expansion have gone over Miss Barber's desk. And once even such accounts as athletics and the Ohio University Fund, now separate financial entities, were just another account handled by Miss Barber.

Retirement will mean more time to enjoy her home, do some gardening and take trips with one sister who is a retired school teacher.

"I have so many plans," she explains, "it will take a long time to catch up on them. I will also welcome some time to just follow my whims. After a good rest she admits she may get lonesome for the routine of a job. "Then," she says, "maybe I'll take a part time job. I have several opportunities and part time work will be relaxing after the responsibilities of my job at the University."

A tribute to her acceptance of those responsibilities and her wise execution of duties throughout the years was presented Miss Barber by the staff of the treasurer's office at a retirement party.

The gift was an exquisite Swiss watch, certain to be as much a part of her life in the future as her job as been in the past.

Alumni Secretary

FOUR OHIO UNIVERSITY professors have been named to the faculty for the 1964 summer Alumni College. Two full-time professors remain to be appointed, in addition to cooperating personnel and guest lecturers.

Those making early commitments include Dr. John Cady, distinguished professor of history; Dr. Raymond Gusteson, associate professor of government; Dr. Fred Leach, professor of painting, and Dr. Anthony Trisolini, associate professor of dramatic art and speech.

This year's second annual Alumni College will consist of two one-week sessions, July 5 through 11 and July 12 through 18. Alumni may register in either session, or both.

Dr. Cady and Dr. Gusteson will teach courses which bring into focus current national and world developments. An expert on China and Southeast Asia, Distinguished Professor Cady will involve alumni in discussions of Red China, South Viet Nam and Cambodia. An analysis of the 1964 presidential campaigns will be the concern of Dr. Gusteson, an authority on political trends.

Joining the Alumni College faculty for the second summer is Dr. Leach, who lectured on contemporary art in 1963 and who will teach this summer's students to work with water colors, pastels and paint in the studio.

Alumni with an interest in theater arts will have an opportunity to study interpretive acting with Dr. Trisolini, popular member of the College of Fine Arts faculty.

Courses for which full-time professors remain to be announced are in contemporary literature and personal finance.

Cooperating personnel who will again assist in the Alumni College are Carroll Widdoes, instruction in bowling, and Kermit Blosser, instruction in golf. Participants will also enjoy swimming, picnics and field trips, and use university dormitories and dining halls.

A tentative schedule of courses for the first session, July 5-11, includes the 1964 campaigns (Gusteson), interpretive acting (Trisolini) and contemporary literature.

The second session, July 12-18, would then include China and Southeast Asia (Cady), painting (Leach) and personal finance.

Afternoons will be reserved for recreation, field trips or free time. Guest lecturers, picnics and other activities will be scheduled in the evenings.
